THE CIRCLE GAME

Yesterday a child came out to wander,
Caught a dragonfly inside a jar.
Fearful when the sky was full of thunder,
And tearful at the falling of a star.

And the seasons they go round and round,
And the painted ponies go up and down.
We're captive on a carousel of time.
We can't return, we can only look behind
From where we came,
And go round and round and round,
In the circle game.

Then the child moved ten times round the seasons.
Skated over ten clear frozen streams.
Words like "when you're older" must appease her,
And promises of someday make her dreams.

And the seasons they go round and round,
And the painted ponies go up and down.
We're captive on a carousel of time.
We can't return, we can only look behind
From where we came,
And go round and round and round,
In the circle game.

Sixteen springs and sixteen summers gone now.
Cartwheels turn to car wheels through the town.
And they tell her, "Take your time, it won't be long now,
Till you drag your feet to slow the circle down."

And the seasons they go round and round,
And the painted ponies go up and down.
We're captive on a carousel of time.
We can't return, we can only look behind
From where we came,
And go round and round and round,
In the circle game.

So the years spin by, and now the girl is twenty.
Though her dreams have lost some grandeur coming true,
They'll be new dreams, maybe better dreams, and plenty,
Before the last revolving year is through.

And the seasons they go round and round,
And the painted ponies go up and down.
We're captive on a carousel of time.
We can't return, we can only look behind
From where we came,
And go round and round and round,
In the circle game.
And go round and round and round,
In the circle game.

Freshman

The class of 1998 entered the high school not knowing what to expect. We were met with friendly upperclassmen, understanding teachers, and many new sports and activites that we were able to participate in. Throughout our freshman year, we continued to grow and conquer the fears that we entered high school with. We hope that we will make the incoming freshmen feel as welcome as we felt as new students. Let's join together as a class and make the next three years the best of our lives.

Sophmores

The only way to make these years the best is to unite, to get to know each other, and to stay involved. The sophmore class has been successful already with great participation in all areas. Clubs, sports, academics, fund-raising and Spirit Week (wait-what happened to Spirit Week?) have been terrific experiances for us all. As we continue our enthusiasm, we will enjoy another wonderful two years together, to crate the memories for a lifetime.

Juniors

We have finally reached the point where are futures should start to become clearer. From confused freshmen to confident juniors, we have come a long way. It has been a road of happiness and hardwork. Our friends have been there to guide and assist us, now it is our time to take control and steer ourselves in the right direction.

Our class spirit was shown when we placed first during Spring Spirit Week last year. We have to keep this spirit alive for the next year to come. Hopefully, as seniors, our many goals will be achieved. Our year to shine has finally arrived.

Oh. what a night it was!! On May 28, 1994, the class of 1995 proved that we knew how to party. The Hellenic Center, with its original decorations, put us all in a festive mood as we jumped to the funky beat of Skavoovie and the Epitones. Those who we couldn't drag onto the dance floor had their own fun torturing the fish on the tables. Nevertheless, the unity of our class was brought to a new peak, as we all danced and partied together. The party didn't end at eleven o'clock, however, but continued into the wee hours of the morning and we will never forget all of the fun we had . . . or Richard's windmill.

recycling club

Argh! It smells so bad in here! At least some students have social responsibility, however, by being dedicated recyclers. The Recycling Club has enjoyed some great afternoons with wonderful converstion. It is so fun, everyone should join. The science museum was great, perhaps Chris, some others and maybe even Ben can go on a field trip this year. Thanks for all the assistance. Good luck and recycle on!!

math league

Hey you, the one looking disgusted with life and looking as if they need some solid integrals to feel better, yeah you! We may have been stuck at the end of the food line for every meet, (including our own home), but the satisfaction of knowing we're no longer at the bottom of the barrel tided us over. Though we didn't support six strings worth of team players like other schools, we still managed to take our rightful place in the league (even if judges never got our scores right)!

-Casey Kokos

amnesty international

Amnesty International's purpose is to promote observance of human rights worldwide. Our backbone is letter writing; it is what frees prisoners, stops torture, ends executions. Here at Ipswich High School, several students come together to fight for the freedom of others. Mrs. Tozier works with us every Monday to help imprisoned citizens to freedom. Amnesty International believes that as individuals we have the right and responsibility to demand that governments ensure human rights for all people, and together we can increase the level of respect for human rights. .

national honor society

The National Honor Society started lowly, but steadily this year. We welome our new advisor, Miss Welsh. The participating students have diverse interests, members belong to everal other extracurricular activities. Although it is very difficult to schedule meetings, most students manage o make an appearance or two. Determined to have a positive impact on he community, the group is working n a peer tutoring program, a Christnas can drive, and a morning anouncements program.

-Marta Schaaf

science league

Now this was fun! We did everything from bunjee-jumping eggs to the Instant Invention. We made it known from the beginning that this was no place for nerds and losers (too bad no other school did). There was much more participation and the success rate was much higher this year; although that didn't get us any closer to the front of the food line. Everything would have been perfect if only the bus driver could get us from point A to point B before 5:30.

octet

Octet is a twelve person group consisting of both males and females. "It's a funny name for a twelve person group," jokes Claire Cayot, the director. This select group consists of juniors and seniors who have worked together for years. "I enjoy the challenging music," says Remy Luerssen, a senior member of the group. During the year Octet has many performances and for the second semester the group transforms into a singing and dancing show choir. All in all, Octet is just - fun!

-Jessica Dudek

concert choir

The 1994-95 concert choir peaked to an astounding seventy singers this year. This large number translated into energized harmonies under the brilliant direction of Claire Cayot. The genre of music ranged across the seven continents, giving the vocalists an increased appreciation for other cultures. The only way the hard work could have paid off, however, was with the help of Mrs. Faust, the accompianist. Great things should be expected from the chorus in the years to come.

"And the band played on." Under the direction of Gerald Dolan, this year's band soared to new heights, and had fun while doing so. The pep band played a variety of music and kept the crowd, dancing, (well almost), in their seats. The concert band worked exceptionally hard as well. There was both emotion and history in their repetoir; including a child's death march for his dog in a movement by Charles Ives, and the folk music of David R. Holsinger. The band had a great year and welcomes its incoming freshmen, yet is sorry to see its talented seniors go.

bel canto bel canto bel canto

"Bel Canto is a good opportunity to sing in an all female group and perform in informal settings," is the feeling of Rachael Simon, a senior member of the group. Bel Canto consists of 16 girls. It is a select group that meets once a week, under the direction of Claire Cayot. Throughout the year the group has many performances and for the first time, Bel Canto will perform at the Choral Festival in the spring. "We have a good group with a lot of talent, and I feel we will have a great year," Ms. Cayot predicts.

-Jessica Dudel

journalism

The twelfth grade Journalism class made great strides in the art of news-writing. The students achieved a new level of understanding in utilizing all of the tools and techniques of the mass media. Remarkably, they were able to master the devious LT-QT-QT method with relative ease. Also, these young reporters were responsible for putting out the Tiger Transcript, the eyes and the ears of the happenings at Ipswich High. The writers for the transcript worked diligently to bring the ground-breaking stories about Ipswich High to the attention of the community.

Why is Ipswich High School's literary magazine called "The Chameleon"? It seems rather bizarre, but it is an expression of the creativity reflected in the magazine. "The Chameleon" accepts essays, short stories, poems, black and white photography and artwork, and all students are welcome to submit their original work. Both of the two issues were unique in content and were the product of hard work by Mrs. Benedetto's senior class. Issues were distributed in January and March.

-R. Luerssen

leadership

Leadership project is a unique experience that allows students to learn a lot more about themselves and others. It is a discussion class where topics range from values to career goals. The class is an opportunity to express personal opinions and learn from others' at the same time. Mo Bowen coordinates the class and does a wonderful job making the class both fun and worthwhile.

student government

The newly formed student government is working hard to gain the respect and support of the administration and student body. With many projects going on, the student government is sure to make a difference at Ipswich High School. All four classes are represented and Ms. Bowen is doing a wonderful job leading this group of enthusiastic and dedicated students.

Under the easy going ;uidance of Ms. Foote and her hand-ome assistant Jonathon, we were ·ble to have fun and show our artistic ide all at the same time.

We can never forget all the fun times we had creating this yearbook for you- late night in the Mac lab, yummy English muffins, "I think I'm going to die! This stuff is evil!", "Richard don't use the toaster for that!", yearbook camp and our friend Seth and all the other groovy times. Well, actually it was hell but we'll still never forget it.

Most importantly, we need to thank our rep Tom Keeley and our advisors, Mr. Merullo and Mr. Winters- sorry if we made you nervous wrecks. A big thanks also to all those who helped us, and even those who didn't but wanted to. We hope that everyone enjoys the book. Never forget the memories we made here at IHS, whether you enjoyed your experience or not.

close-up project

After lobster roll sales, raffles and the notorious middle school dance Close-Up seniors wrapped up a season of fundraising and embarked on a journey to the great city of Washington D.C. Through seminars, workshops, and free time we experienced the city and U.S. government first hand. Under Mr. Spellman's watchful eye, we met people from around the country and had a great time.

-R. Simo.

the company at the company

With a strong group of seniors who've been together and working hard for four years, this may very well be one of the best years The Company has seen. The first show, "Guys and Dolls" was a huge success. The "Mission Dolls" will never forget the now infamous gavel or the friendly note they wrote to the General. The huge cast put on a fantastic show. The competition play, "To Destroy You Is No Loss" was an emotional and well performed show. We could not have done it without Mrs. Faust, who put in way too many hours but is greatly appreciated. Good luck to all the underclassmen.

ALL THE WAY

football football football

Despite an extremely rocky start to the season, the Tigers were able to finish 5-5 on the year with impressive victories over Pentucket, Triton, and Hamilton-Wenham. Although Ipswich was predicted to win the Cape Ann League Championship for the fourth year in a row, they faced tremendous odds in completing this task. With only three returning starters on offense, three on defense, and an all new front line, the Tigers did not have as much experience as many of their arch rivals in the league.

Many questions loomed about the season to come. How well would Ipswich do after losing just about the whole team to graduation, and would the new-born offensive line be able to give Mike Raimo another 1000 yard-rushing season? Their record may not have shown it but the tigers played with great tenacity and were never willing to hang up the towel. Ipswich showed they were a force to reckon with by beating Pentucket, North Reading, Triton and Lynnfield.

The highlight of the season was beating the Generals for the fourth consecutive year on Thanksgiving day to finish up the year. The recollections of that bitterly cold morning and the words of Coach Jack Welch, "It takes a special kind of person to play this game," will live in every player's memory.

"Let's eat them up like dinosaurs," tri-captain Shelby Wright said frequently throughout the field hockey team's trail of many victories and counted defeats. The team finished with an outstanding record of 10-2-3.

Hamilton-Wenham was the first victim. Many other unwilling victims followed, but a few ties got in the way. When the team played Manchester the first time, Ipswich came back to tie the game by scoring 2 goals within one minute, Then after a rowdy homecoming rally, Lynnfield scored, Ipswich scored, Lynnfield scored, Ipswich scored . . . to end in a tie of 3-3. But when the Tigers really came to play, the other team was forced out of the way.

The first loss of the season was against dreaded Georgetown. But the second time, the team gave everything and lost 1-0! A lone, lucky shot went in and hopes for division champs vanished.

The field hockey team was the only fall team to go post-season. The state tournament began by beating Saugus 3-0 and Concord-Carlisle 1-0 (despite a 1 hour 30 min break down next to Bay Bank). Then in the semi-final, Ipswich lost to Watertown . . . again.

The team will never forget the day of accidents when two people were carried off the field and all the great memories.

Ipswich High School Soccer underwent a youth movement throughout its Fall 1994 season. With a line-up consisting of 8 sophomores, inexperience and lack of confidence were the greatest obstacles. Nevertheless, the tigers showed promise and glimpses of tremendous potential. Relying on an emerging team spirit and a large pool of talent the Ipswich Tigers propelled themselves to a record of 5-10-3.

What is there to say besides that, despite the contradicting record, the girls soccer team seemed improved from last year. The team upped their game as well as their appearance. The girls earned black socks (to replace the clashing orange ones), by winning a game against Georgetown (a.k.a the peak of the season). If only the team had received their new windbreakers before the last game they could have been an extremely attractive team if nothing else! Thanks to the fans, who consisted mostly of parents, but also of our favorite ball boy Jamie, who read us poetry. Congratulations to all-stars Kelly Usher, Carrie Pollak, Diane Economiedes, and Jen Usher and good luck to next year's team.

golf golf golf golf golf

The Tigers golf team of 1994 experienced its first sub-par season in history. Seniors, Casey Kokos, Chris Frier, and Ben Taylor all had superb seasons on the links. Taylor, who's excellent shot selection and short game killed his opponents, performed skillfully in must win situations. Frier, as usual, came on fire at the end of the season to medal in a match, shoot an 82 in the CAL Open, and to earn CAL Allstar status. Kokos led the team in scoring average, which included six rounds of under 40, and medalled for the Tigers in many matches. Kokos also qualified for the State Individual Tournament but shot an awful 88 which put him in the middle of the pack. The Tigers' final record was 8-9-2, one match victory short of qualifying for the state team championship.

This year's cross country team had an admirable season running with Georgetown. The team put in a lot of hard work and many hours. One, two, three, Power! The women in black, the girls basketball team had a successful season this year with a record of 11-6 during the regular season and they were off to the States. Ipswich, ranked number 1 going into the State Division 4 tournament, had a good chance of getting a Division title.

The season was highlighted by Julie Hook's 4 three pointers (a school record) at the Amesbury game, Jen Usher's and Carrie Pollak's matching 20 points, the tenacious full court press in the explosive second half of the Georgetown game, and the North Andover game's intense first half. The team had a couple of unlucky games with missed shots at the buzzer (Lynnfield and Amesbury), that cost them the league title, but overall the team gave it's best effort.

The JV and Varsity both enjoyed the season and especially liked the push-ups and running. The sleepover and dinners were good team bonding.

The IHS Boys Varsity Basketball began this year under first year coach Doug Woodworth with high hopes. Those high hopes soon faded after the Tigers went halfway through the season with only one win. This year's team was lead by the three captains Doug Bender, Tom Ouellette and David Langlais. The team also received an added boost from Chris Monteiro who had been playing hockey the past two seasons. Though the Tigers struggled, they never lost hope. With only six graduating seniors, the basketball team has a bright future with plenty of heart.

The girl's winter track team was faced with one major problem . . . numbers, or lack of numbers to be precise. This however, did not effect personal performance or team spirit. The girls pulled together to have fun and root each other on. Between meets there was always time for grueling speed-workouts in the bitter cold, and Coach Michelle's constant question of "Where are your hats ladies?"

The 1994-95 Ipswich High School Indoor Track Team epitomized determination, dedication, and spirit. With the loss of several talented runners, the team was unsure of what the 1994-95 season would bring. Nevertheless, the sprint and distant crews worked hard, braving the harsh winter elements. Each week this young team won the respect of it's large school competitors. As the season progressed, the team realized that anything short of a League Championship Title would qualify as a disappointment. Under the pressure of our own expectations, the I.H.S. track team relied on the senior leadership of Mason Barney, Jonathan Butcher, Rick Gelinas, Travis Hutchins, and Tom Zabelski coupled with the addition of several key underclassmen to attain a 4-0 (5-1 Greater Lynn League), capturing it's first ever Cape Ann League Title and several post-season honors.

This season was a learning experience for all, we had several new team members as well as a new coach, Pat Emery. Since the beginning of the season the progress that this squad made has shown both talent and enthusiasm. It was very nerve racking for the squad this season due to an unexpected snow storm the weekend of competition. We didn't know weather or not we were competing until that morning. Although the conditions were bad we did compete. For the seniors it was their last chance to compete at the high school level and they had hoped to win, but we were satisfied placing eighth out of thirteen squads. The dedication and teamwork that this squad has shown has proved that cheerleading is a sport and that we are all athletes. The seniors would like to thank both Pat and the squad for a great season and wish them the best of luck.

Full Circle . . .

We move in circles. Circles of speech, circles of dance, circles of friends. Dancing in a circle of friends not too long ago, I felt a sense of total protection, complete security. I wished that all of us could have that same peace, that everyone could have a circle as tight and intimate as my own. Then I looked away, across the room, and noticed a solitary figure standing by the wall. So I smiled at her and she joined our circle, and danced with us until we fell to the floor, as one, in exhausted bliss. In that moment, I felt a strange sense of power at being able to alter the shape of our circle so easily.

This, I realized, is largely like our class, moving in circles, ever changing. At first, our circle seemed tight, defined. We were just beginning. It was important to be in the right circle, to have the right friends. Freshman year, we all wanted that sense of security, that knowledge that we fit in some circle, somewhere. But then we learned that what is right is not always what is comfortable and our circles stretched, expanded to become more inclusive. And we grew a little.

Sophomore year seemed to be nothing but circles, all one against another. There were times when our small circles united into one larger, more complete circle, but these times seemed numbered. Our circles became further defined. We had begun, as individuals, to come into our own and we wanted to find a circle that fit us. We moved from one to the next, hoping to find that unity that we all need. And we grew a bit more.

Lines were crossed in our next year, circles broken and circles mended. We were getting to know one another- not as names, not as faces, but as people. Our friendships with one another seemed to become more personal. Junior year was a time for change, for revelation, for reflection. A time to bend the shape of our circles and alter what had seemed unchangeable in past years. And we grew a lot.

Our circles have melded now, like links in a strong chain. There are faulty links, but the strength of the many greatly outweighs the weakness of a few. The rest of senior year looms before us, our last few, precious moments with our circles, both small and large. And I offer this- hold tight to your circle, hold it close to your heart, never forget how it gave you strength when you needed it most. And how we, as a class have become one large circle, our hands clasped together to form the border and the memories that we have shared held within.

And so I leave you with my words, my love and my hope that when we all see each other again that we haven't come, full circle, back to where we began . . .
